

Thinking about your own Ethical Self Awareness.

Choose one scenario

What is the Ethical Issue(s)? Think about as many different perspectives as you can and any relationships between them.

What are the possible choices and implications of those choices?

(as in the accountant being asked to write off the lunch for his boss, the husband faced with stealing to save his dying wife, the colleague who noticed his bosses excess spending or the Himalayan hiking teams' choice about how to treat a Holy Man).

Reasonably defend the choices you would make. Relate these choices to your core ethical beliefs and where you think these beliefs come from.

The boss's business lunch "write off". <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=fyf2xjx4mzU>

A husband trying to save his dying wife. <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Qgap5RgfMVc>

A nonprofit executive taking advantage of his expense account.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=dTs8meMCiJg>

Read the classic Harvard Business Review case study called the Parable of Sadhu by entering this exact phrase into a Search Window,

"the parable of sadhu". The first reference you see should be called (DOC) The Parable of the Sadhu – Mike Mullen- Main Page.